Five Points of Wisdom: The New Survey Results are In

By Council Member Tali Bruce

As elected officials and city staff members, it is our duty to ensure that Cottonwood Heights is the best possible version of itself. We take great pride in our city and want to make sure that we are attentive to our No. 1 priority, which is our residents. Therefore, in November, we administered a scientific random sample survey to better understand which items are the most important to Cottonwood Heights citizens. The survey included a random sample of residents who participated.

In January, we received the results of the survey. This feedback is particularly important in determining how we prioritize our planning and efforts to make Cottonwood Heights the best place it can possibly be. Listed here are our five big takeaways from the survey:

A majority of residents report high quality of life and approve of the direction the city is headed. Three out of four approve of city elected officials' job performance, and two out of three say they receive an excellent or good value for their tax dollar.

This is reassuring news and supports our goals. We understand that people choose to live here because of our high quality of life and premium value. Seeing that most of the residents surveyed seem satisfied with the state of our city lets us know that we are doing some things right. We always want to improve and like to hear what we can do to keep getting better.

Residents most positive evaluations of Cottonwood Heights focus on safety and family-friendliness, as well as its convenient and scenic location.

Our city is beautiful, and our location is simply the best in the valley when it comes to recreational activities combined with convenience. With freeway access and unmatched proximity to the canyons, it is our responsibility to protect and preserve our attractive and pristine home. We are glad to hear that residents value the safety of our community as much as we do.

When asked if they would rather see the city use existing funds and reduce other service expenditures or assess a new storm water fee to address infrastructure needs, two-thirds of respondents say they would rather use existing funds and reduce expenditures elsewhere.

Fiscal responsibility is extremely important to us as a Council. We value our resources and we will look at all avenues and options as we determine how to continually update our infrastructure. Our staff takes tremendous pride and caution when looking at city finances and we are proud of their diligence. This takeaway from the survey will have to be evaluated, as we know there are needs to upgrade city infrastructure.

When considering how they would choose to allocate funds from the Cottonwood Heights City budget if the decision were theirs, respondents allocate an average of 10% of their budget to street maintenance. Other top priorities include snow removal, renewable energy, and city parks.

There are several shared resources here in the city. However, the No. 1 shared resource is our city streets. The maintenance and upkeep of this critical infrastructure impacts everyone which is why street maintenance and snow removal remain top of mind. We are also striving to implement policies related to renewable energy and have goals to be a completely "green" community within the next 10 years.

Residents are generally interested in seeing off-leash dog areas created in Cottonwood

Heights City parks. Just over half of residents would like to see a portion of their favorite park devoted to off-leash dogs, and off-leash dog areas are commonly requested improvements for parks throughout the city.

As a Council, we have discussed at great length funding a dog park in Cottonwood Heights. We've worked with staff to develop a timeline to formulate a decision on investing in a dog park in the city. We will definitely deliberate soon.

We truly appreciate feedback from our residents and the survey is available to view and download on our website. There are many ways to give feedback: online, via email or over the phone, and we are always ready to listen. The input helps us understand public views which helps in the decision-making process.

I repeat this often, I like to hear your concerns. I love to hear your solutions. ■

Public Open House - Bonneville Shoreline Trail Access Plan

Thursday, Feb. 20
Cottonwood Heights City Hall

The city is working to develop a plan that addresses proper access to the Bonneville Shoreline Trail in Cottonwood Heights. All residents and members of the public interested in the future of the Bonneville Shoreline Trail are invited to attend a public open house on Thursday, Feb. 20 to provide feedback and direction on potential Bonneville Shoreline access points.

The Bonneville Shoreline Trail is a regional recreation amenity planned throughout the Wasatch Front. A portion of its potential alignment crosses through the eastern portion of Cottonwood Heights in the foothills of the mountains. Proper access is critical to the success of any future trail, and until now no formal study of trail access has been completed. The city would like to better understand types of access required for regional trail systems, possible locations for those access points, and the impacts of trail access to the nearby area. To address these things, the city is preparing an access master plan to better understand future trail accessibility, and its accompanying opportunities and challenges. Join us on Feb. 20 to provide this valuable input. ■

Artist Spotlight: Cheryl H. Merkley

Cheryl H. Merkley's art career began when she moved to Cottonwood Heights 34 years ago and met longtime resident Melva Nelson.

Nelson would invite several women over to paint and teach them art lessons. She introduced Merkley to the world of watercolor and helped mentor her until she started school at the University of Utah. Merkley ended up graduating from the U in 1997, earning a BFA in fine art with an emphasis in painting and drawing.

Merkley and Nelson remained close. In fact, a month before Nelson's passing, they were painting poppies together in Highland, Utah. Today, Merkley keeps a picture of her friend above her easel with the word 'inspire' to remember Melva and how she inspired her on the path of becoming an artist.

But Nelson wasn't Merkley's only inspiration. Merkley first started in nursing at the University of Utah and while doing her undergraduate work, she took a drawing class. The professor asked her why she wasn't majoring in art. That one remark changed her life; the next day she changed her major.

While at the U, she studied under great professors such as Paul Davis, David Dornan and Tony Smith. Merkley's favorite medium is oil, and she loves to paint directly from life. She enjoys portraying the beauty in our everyday lives with bold and bright colors, loose brush strokes and thick, juicy paint. She says she likes to almost feel as if she is carving the object out of paint.

Her studio is located at 3474 S. 2300 East #3, in a charming building that was a historical radio factory during World War II. Watch for the black-and-white door and stop in and say 'hello.' Her website is Cherylmerkley.com. ■

SNOW REMOVAL | FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

The unique topography and location of Cottonwood Heights makes our community one of the most beautiful and vibrant areas in the Salt Lake Valley. One of the unique challenges of life in Cottonwood Heights is the means by which snow is plowed from our streets. There are three distinct elevations in our city, including the lower areas west of Highland Drive, the bench between Highland Drive and Wasatch Boulevard and the neighborhoods above Wasatch Boulevard, in the foothills of the mountains.

These higher elevations are prime dumping grounds when winter storms roll in, causing Cottonwood Heights to register some of the deeper accumulation totals compared to other communities. Lake effect storms increase these challenges.

The city has a great responsibility to clear the roads as soon as possible, and depending on the severity, timing and length of any particular storm, the time it takes to complete plowing may vary. The city has guidelines that dictate its responsibility, but there are other responsibilities specific to residents.

The overall goal of this responsibility is made easier when we partner with neighbors to speed up the process – clearing the roads of any obstacles that stand in the way of our trucks. Keeping streets clear of parked vehicles, emptied garbage cans and snow from driveways and sidewalks is essential to prompt plowing. We can accomplish as we work together.

Many have valid questions about plowing in Cottonwood Heights. As such, we have supplied the following list of frequently asked questions to address these concerns.

As always, we welcome concerns and questions, and we ask that you review these commonly asked questions to see if your inquiry has already been answered:

I saw a Cottonwood Heights snowplow driving around during the storm with its blade up. Why wasn't it plowing?

It is the goal of the Public Works Department to plow streets systematically and efficiently. When snowplows are moving from one location to another to re-load salt, they lose weight (ballast) in the truck and therefore lift their plows to go reload; or, if roads are ice packed, the plows will be salting areas and have their plows lifted. Plowing wears down the blades so leaving it in contact with the roadway when there is not a need causes unnecessary wear on the equipment.

Why can't I park on the street during a storm?

Not only is it a violation of city code, it prevents the plows from plowing the entire street. All cars must be removed from the road during storms for safety and plowing efficiency.

What can I do if cars parked on the street are causing a hazard or restricting plowing operations?

You can report these to the police department through a non-emergency dispatch number by calling 801-743-7000.

Why can't I blow the snow from my driveway and sidewalk into the city street?

Blowing this snow after the plows have been through an area creates ice patches that are dangerous to the traveling public. It is better to blow this snow into your lawns; it keeps the roads clear.

Who do I call to report problems with snow removal?

You should contact Cottonwood Heights at 801-944-7000 during regular office hours Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., or send an email to snowevent@ch.utah.gov if you feel we have missed a road or an area within 24 hours after the end of the storm. Someone will be dispatched to review and send a truck if needed.

Who is responsible for clearing sidewalks in front of city-owned property?

Sidewalks along Cottonwood Heights property are contracted to be cleared by Cottonwood Heights Recreation District. If there is an issue with sidewalk snow clearing on these sidewalks please contact City Hall at 801-944-7000.

During a snowstorm, our trucks are out and working in the assigned areas and routes; we do not stop a plow in one area to move it to another area because of phone calls. A phone call or an email does not alter the routes of the snowplow drivers. This would be a very inefficient system and the chances of roads getting missed is greatly increased. ■

Updates from the District

Collection Rates

The Wasatch Front Waste & Recycling District fees for 2020 will remain at $17 per month/per year ($204 per year) for one garbage can and one recycle can. The fee also includes annual Area Cleanup, Leaf Bag Collection, Curbside Christmas Tree Collection, and can repair/replacement.

There is an increase, from $50 to $100, to the start-up fees on accounts for newly built homes.

Recycling

As the recycling industry stabilizes, many organizations are creating new and innovative ways to recycle the materials we use daily. From paper to plastic to cardboard, WFWRD is working hard to find new opportunities to accept more materials and make sure they are being recycled in the most environmentally friendly way possible. Be sure to take the time to familiarize yourself with items that are currently recyclable by using the district's new recycling guides, found on its Facebook page and website. By reducing contamination, the district can continue to keep costs low for all residents. Remember, when in doubt, throw it out! ■

Broken/Damaged Cans

If your garbage or recycle can is broken or damaged, please call the WFWRD office at 385-468-6325. They will come and repair your cans as part of your fees for services. You can also complete an online service order request at wasatchfrontwaste.org/report-a-problem-or-request-service/ ■

This fee increase covers the full cost of the waste and recycle cans for the new home. Please refer to the 2020 fee schedule on the WFWRD website wasatchfrontwaste.org/rates-fees for more details.

WFWRD continues to find ways to be more efficient and keep costs as low as possible for residents. However, they have been absorbing increased costs for labor, maintenance shop rates and recycling processing for the past three years. Therefore, the district is anticipating a fee increase at the beginning of 2021 to sustain current service levels. More details will be provided in the coming months. You may also contact Pam Roberts, general manager, for more information. She can be reached by phone at 385-468-6342 or email, PROberts@wasatchfrontwaste.org ■

Answer

Education is a high priority for those living in Utah. The same was true of the early settlers of our city. By 1850, those settlers had built a log schoolhouse, located along the Little Cottonwood Creek bottom lands (east of today's 1300 East.) Silas Richards, one of the first settlers and a farmer, taught school with between 30-35 students in attendance. He did this during the school years from 1850 to 1852. In 1852, the Salt Lake County Court created school districts in several of the existing communities. Union became School District 23. While the schools in Utah professed to be public, they were mostly parochial in nature. In 1854, a new two-story school and meeting house was erected within the Union Fort. The old school was used as a house by the Forbush family.

Valuing Seniors: Wisdom Comes with Age

By Miriam Aiazzi, Cottonwood Heights Business Association Board

Cottonwood Heights is a wonderful place to live, not only for our proximity to some of the best ski resorts in the world but also because of our diverse population. Twenty-four percent of that cross section is made up of individuals over the age of 55, which has prompted many requests for the allocation of a senior center in the area. Taking this matter seriously, I started my research and contacted Salt Lake County Aging Services to find out what the likelihood was of us getting a senior center. This is what I discovered:

We have 19 senior centers in Salt Lake County. Three are privately run and overseen by the state. It is anticipated that by the year 2030, our senior population will outnumber our school-age children. Still, despite these numbers, senior center attendance has been on the decline. This is attributed to two things: Many seniors are opting to remain in the workforce post retirement age; and seniors are opting to join recreation centers instead of attending a senior center. In 2018, the number of people served in the two centers closest to Cottonwood Heights (Sandy and Murray) were 1,700 and 1,900, respectively.

With that in mind, Salt Lake County Aging Services is not currently planning to build any more senior centers. However, anyone over the age of 55 can access and attend any other senior center. The two closest to our city are located at 9310 S. 1300 East in Sandy, and 1635 E. Murray-Holladay Road. Membership, transportation and a hot meal served daily are free, although small donations are encouraged if possible.

Please visit slco.org/aging or call 385-468-3200 for a list services provided by the division, including free rides for vital medical appointments, the Meals on Wheels program, legal services, assistance for veterans, and caregiver support, to name a few.

In addition, the Cottonwood Heights Recreation Center offers a variety of exercise programs geared toward seniors, Monday through Thursday between 9:45 and 10:45 a.m. These include cardio, dance, circuit and yoga classes. A Silver Sneakers program serving over 1 million seniors nationwide also is offered, and the staff at the CHRC front desk can assist with eligibility requirements. Please visit cottonwoodheights.com for details or call 801-943-3190. ■
