The Angus B. and Lucy Price House is a one story World-War II Era cottage with Minimal Traditional styling details. The house is located at 1561 East 7200 South, Cottonwood Heights, Salt Lake County, Utah.¹ The house was constructed in 1939. This small rectangular wood-framed house rests on a concrete foundation and its exterior is covered by wide aluminum siding. The gabled roof is composed of asphalt shingles. The house has 672 square feet on the main floor and 672 square feet in the full basement. The house exterior has had few modifications and is in moderate condition. The house is located on a 0.59 acre flat parcel, which is the remains of the large Denney/Price farm parcel. The immediate neighborhood is composed of houses and multiple-unit dwellings, with a large commercial development to the west. The Angus and Lucy Price House retains its architectural integrity and is a contributing local resource.

The Angus B. and Lucy Price House is a rectangular house constructed of wood-framed single story walls on a concrete foundation. The house is very simple and has few decorative elements, making it a good example of the post-1930s depression and World War II era Minimal Traditional style.^{2 3} The decorative details include two small brackets supporting the porch roof, an added gable-end over the living room and trim boards around the window openings. The original narrow clapboard wood siding exterior has been replaced by wider aluminum siding over clapboard-style medium-density fiberboard. A large wooden wheelchair access ramp covers the front of the façade and the original small concrete porch steps. The house has an original attached single car garage with matching siding. The garage originally had two carriage-style doors which have been replaced by a single overhead garage door.

The front (west) facing façade has an asymmetrical three-bay façade with two windows flanking a central door parallel to the roof ridgeline. An unarticulated gable-end roof element is located over the larger living room window on the left of the façade. The living room window is composed of two tall, narrow single-hung aluminum-framed windows surrounded by simple painted wood trim boards. The windows are 1960s replacements of two similarly-sized original wood-framed single-hung windows. The front door is covered by a small gable-ended, asphalt shingle wooden porch roof with brackets. The front door is a metal six-panel replacement door. The window on the right is an aluminum-framed slider window which replaced the original nearly rectangular single-hung wood-framed window.

The south façade is composed of a single aluminum-framed slider window and the single car garage, which is recessed from the front façade and is even with the rear (east) façade. Several pieces of aluminum siding are missing from the south façade and front of the garage.

¹ The historical address for this house was 7164 South 1600 East

The east façade has four bays composed of three windows and a rear door. From the south, there is a large aluminum-framed slider window, a smaller bathroom slider window, a six-panel metal door and a second large aluminum-framed slider window. The northern-most window has a 24-inch deep shed-roofed bay window articulation extending from the façade. The roof-line of the bay window is an extension of the larger gabled-roof slope. There is an approximately 2'x 6' concrete slab porch in front of the rear door and bay window.

The north façade is composed of two aluminum-framed slider windows, with a smaller window on the east and a larger window on the west.

The interior contains 672 square feet on the main floor and 672 square foot full basement. The basement windows and window wells, one on each of the east, south and west facades have been enlarged to meet more current building regulations, and contain corrugated metal window wells and aluminum-framed slider windows.⁴ The house sits on a 0.59 acre flat parcel.⁵ The parcel has several Fitzer/Juniper bushes located along the sides of the house, but no lawn, trees or other landscaping. The house is accessed by a graveled lane on the west side of the property, leading to a concrete slab driveway in front of the garage. There are no other structures on the property.

The immediate area surrounding the Angus B and Lucy Price House is composed of residential houses/developments to the east and a large commercial development to the west. The residential area to the east contains mixed and older styles along major roads and primarily mid-20th century and newer small developments as agricultural land has been infilled. The commercial development to the west was constructed in an earlier gravel pit and quarry and is not visible from the house, as there is a significant slope drop-off into the quarry.⁶

plank siding house on the front of the current lot near 1600 East and 7200 South.⁸ On April 8, 1905 Charles Denney's widow Sarah sold the property to Frank B. Stephens. Frank and Lunette Stephens owned the property until December 19, 1918 when they sold it to Angus Byard and Lucy Williams Price. Angus B. and Lucy Price lived in the older house until they constructed the current house in the rear of the residential parcel in 1939.⁹ Angus B. and Lucy Price owned the house until December 11, 1974. The house was owned by Angus and Lucy Price, their son Gene Price, and Price family grandchildren until 2007.

Angus B. and Lucy Price History

Angus B. Price was born on November 27, 1877 in nearby Draper, Utah to Ezekial Price (1833-1892) and Rhoda Elizabeth Watkins Price (1844-1912).¹⁰ Angus attended school through 5th grade, and worked on his family farm in Draper. Angus continued to farm through 1900 when the U.S. census showed him in the household of Rhoda Price with his newly married wife and younger brother Thomas Price. Angus Price married Lucy Ellen Williams on April 18, 1900, and they moved to Salt Lake City shortly after the census.¹¹ ¹² They lived at several addresses in Salt Lake City until purchasing the 20-acre parcel located in Union on December 19, 1918. Angus worked primarily as a laborer while living in Salt Lake City.¹³

Angus began farming after purchasing the property at 1561 East 7200 South, but also continued to work as a wage earner throughout the rest of his working career.¹⁴ By the mid-1920s City Directories indicated he worked as a mechanic while living on a farm property. During the initial years of the Great Depression Angus listed his occupation as only a farmer, indicating that he was probably unable to find paid work.¹⁵ In the late 1930s Angus worked for the Works Progress Administration, particularly on a bridge project in 1940, according to the 1940 census and his early 1940s draft registration card.¹⁶ By the late 1950s, Angus no longer listed an occupation on directories, and was likely retired.¹⁷

Lucy Ellen Williams was born September 5, 1881 in Auckland, New Zealand to James Clark Williams (1854-1925) and Sarah Porter Rogers Williams (1858-1945) who had earlier emigrated from England. The family immigrated to Utah in 1884, and the family lived in Salt Lake City until James' death in 1925. Lucy's mother Sarah moved to Union and married prominent local resident Charles

Denney, Jr.¹⁸ Angus and Lucy Price purchased the Denney farm from Frank and Lunette Stephens, who had earlier purchased it from Sarah Williams Price. Angus and Lucy had ten children Angus Glen, Earl Lewis, Bert Leland, Leroy James, Ralph Williams, Lucy Marie, Velma Sarah, Melvin Porter, Eugene Williams and Calvin George.¹⁹

Angus B. and Lucy Price lived in the house until their deaths. Angus B. Price died on July 29, 1963 and Lucy Price died on May 10, 1970. Their youngest son Calvin George Price lived in the house with them after he served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and graduated from the University of Utah after the war. Calvin married Margaret Clark on February 24, 1948. Calvin and Margaret lived in the house through 1960, and later moved to Sandy.²⁰ The family owned the house until descendent Aaron Price sold the property to Platinum Construction on March 12, 2007. The house was further transferred to Aaron Mehrley on March 3, 2016.

The Angus B. and Lucy Price House is locally significant for its association with the Denney and Price families, who were part of the exploration/settlement and development of farming in the Union area of Salt Lake County.
