4 ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION

Building Style/Type: Craftsman Bungalow residence with Ranch House remodeling No. Stories: 1.0

Foundation Material: concrete Wall Material(s): shingle-sided wood frame

Additions: none minor major (describe below) Alterations: none minor major (describe below)

Number of associated outbuildings 2 and/or structures 1.

Briefly describe the principal building, additions or alterations and their dates, and associated outbuildings and structures. Use continuation sheets as necessary.

The Fowlks House sits far back from 2300 East on a sizable 0.82-acre lot. Entry to the yard by car to the house and detached garage behind it is via a long driveway along the north property line. Flanking the driveway entry are two large, wayfinding posts or piers made of cobblestone, each topped by a round boulder “finial.”

The Fowlks House is said to have been built in 1928 and this comports with its original Craftsman Bungalow style, popular then. Sitting on a concrete foundation is a wood-frame structure sided with tall, wood shingles on the main level wall and smaller shingles in the triangular upper gable ends. Supporting the widely overhanging roof eaves are Craftsman-style wooden brackets. Along the north gabled wall is a masonry chimney, while along the south wall is a roofed, open-air patio addition. Its roof and the non-original front porch roof are supported by wrought iron posts. All of the home’s windows are rectangular with fixed or sliding sashes.

Although it may not be apparent at first glance or without the aid of the old tax photo, the house has been altered in important ways. The north chimney has been added. The exterior was originally monochromatic, not divided visually into a main level band of dark color under white gable ends. This high contrast makes the house appear very different than it did when built. Other alterations include the replacement of the cantilevered front, gabled porch roof with the larger, present shed one. Most or all of the original awning-style, small-paned windows have been replaced with modern, sometimes smaller windows and some windows have been filled in or covered over entirely. The result of all these modifications is a house that appears to be a hybrid—half Bungalow and half Ranch or vernacular. In all, its form is intact but the architectural integrity of some of its detailing has been lost.

Behind the house to the west is an architecturally similar garage with a gabled roof and large shingle siding. It is visually compatible with the main house. To the north of the garage is a small, one-story, hip-roofed structure made of cobblestone. It was apparently a milk house or summer kitchen. It appears to have been built at the same time as the house, or earlier. According to the present owner, whose family has owned the property since 1946, the lot also once contained an array of barns, animal shelters and related agricultural outbuildings. When built, it was the only house in the area.

This property was created from the larger one first homesteaded by William McGhie, Jr., who received it from the United States by patent in 1882. It remained in his ownership until his death, after which, in 1918, his widow Mary McGhie conveyed it to their daughter Sarah Jane McGhie via a quit claim deed.

Like Butlerville's founding Butler brothers, the McGhie clan settled early in the mouth of Big Cottonwood Canyon, obtaining sizable parcels of land and playing an important role in the area's initial development. Scotsman William McGhie, jr. was born in Kirkoswald, Ayre County in 1830 to John Kellie and Elizabeth Collins. When she was remarried to William McGhie, Sr. in 1831, her infant son was adopted and given the name McGhie, with the Junior added. In 1854 the family, now expanded with the addition of two more children, sailed from Scotland to the United States. By then William, Jr. had married Mary McBain, born in Glasgow, Scotland in 1832. They brought with them their three small children. On the voyage the passengers, including William, Jr. and his two-year old son, William III, contracted smallpox and were quarantined. Although many others on board perished, all the McGhies were fortunate to survive.

Upon arriving in Utah, the McGhies settled in the Millcreek area but stayed there only a year or two before relocating to Provo where William, Jr. was employed in a sawmill. They returned to Millcreek in the fall of 1856 and remained in the area for ten years. After spending 1865-66 in Midway, the McGhies returned to the Salt Lake Valley, settling on 80 acres near and south of the mouth of Big Cottonwood Canyon. This occurred in about 1867, making the McGhies one of the first families to permanently locate there.

The McGhie parcel of land was bounded on the south by 7000 South and on the northeast by the Old Mill Road. The top of the property was the nexus of Wasatch Boulevard and the Old Mill Road. On their original large parcel the McGhies built a complex of buildings to serve their family and function as a way-station for the teamsters, miners and sawyers working up the canyon. In addition to their own family home, they had a stable from which they rented horses. William, Jr. also purchased the brewery built by Philander Butler, renaming it "McGhie's Tavern." While serving as the area's postmaster, his house was also the first post office. When Butlerville Precinct was formed in 1877, McGhie became its first constable. In 1872 William McGhie, Jr. expanded his holdings after receiving from the federal Morrill Act a patent allowing him to farm a separate 160-acre piece of land in section 25, bounded by today's Wasatch Boulevard on the east and his son-in-law, Neri Butler's, property on the west. He also obtained rights to Big Cottonwood Creek water, enabling him to create the McGhie Canal and expand his farm. The 1880 and 1900 censuses show McGhie as a farmer. He also sold shares in the ditch to farmers along 2300 E., allowing them to irrigate their farms. McGhie also secured the rights to the seven large streams of water flowing from the hillside opposite his house in Butlerville. Known as McGhie Springs, the City of Murray acquired them in 1919 to provide culinary water for the city's supply.

In 1887 a major fire, started accidentally by his grandson, burned down much of McGhie's estate. William and Mary McGhie were a prolific couple. They had twelve children, all of whom lived to maturity—a rare occurrence at that time. Their children married into many of the other prominent families in Butlerville, including the Butler, Blair, Covert, Colebrook and Staker families. William, Jr. died in 1902. Mary McGhie stayed in their home until she sold it to Hyrum Covert in 1912. She died in Butlerville in 1921. This particular piece of their property, now containing 6608 S. 2300 E., was conveyed in 1918 by Mary to her daughter-in-law, Sarah Jane McGhie, the widow of William McGhie III. Two years later, Sarah Jane transferred it to her niece Charlotte Fowlks and her husband John W. for $3,000.

John William Fowlks was born in about 1877 to English-born John W., Sr. and Annie Fowlks. He married his wife Charlotte T., born in 1886, and they resided on their farm on Creek Road until later moving to Highland Drive. He died in 1946. The Fowlks' owned the property for three years between 1923 and '27, before selling it to Lillie G. and Walter G. Scott. The Scotts took out a $3,000 mortgage there in 1928, the year the tax card says the house was built, so it appears to have been built for them and they maintained its ownership until 1931.

Walter Gray Scott was born in Greensboro, North Carolina in 1877 to Eli H. and Sallie E. Young. In Salt Lake City in 1902 he married Lillie G. Cogle, born in 1876. A salesman, first for a carriage company and then for an insurance company, in 1930 they were living in Butler, probably in this home. In 1931 the Scotts sold the property to Van R. and Gladys Savage, who took out mortgages of $5,000 and $4,138.40 on it in 1931 and '32. Apparently to satisfy indebtedness, the Home Owner's Loan Corp. took over ownership in 1937, selling it in 1948 to George D. and Lillian L. Gray, parents of the present owner, Ann Christine Gray.

George Donald Fullerton Gray was born in Utah in 1908 to George and Annie Fullerton Gray. A carpenter and building contractor, he married Lillian Lavinia Lundgren, born in Utah in 1914. During their ownership of this home, they are listed in city directories as living at 6594 S. 23rd E. and by 1953, at the address of this home—6608 S. 23rd E. It may be that these addresses were both valid for this property at different times. In 1991, her aged parents George and Lillian Gray conveyed the property to their daughter, Ann Christine. George died in 1994, followed by Lillian in 2001. Given his skills as a carpenter-builder, it appears George Gray made the changes to the home done after 1946, as well as building the matching, shingled garage.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the underlying mechanisms of the system. This is crucial for developing effective interventions and policies. The authors argue that a comprehensive understanding of the system's dynamics is essential for addressing the challenges it presents.

In the second part, the authors present a detailed analysis of the system's behavior. They use a combination of theoretical models and empirical data to explore the system's response to various inputs and conditions. The results show that the system exhibits complex, non-linear behavior, which is characteristic of many real-world systems.

The third part of the paper focuses on the implications of these findings for practice. The authors discuss how the insights gained from their research can be used to inform decision-making and policy development. They emphasize the need for a holistic and systems-oriented approach to address the challenges at hand.

Finally, the authors conclude by highlighting the limitations of their study and suggesting directions for future research. They note that while their work provides valuable insights, there are still many questions that need to be answered. Future studies should aim to further refine the models and explore the system's behavior under different conditions.

Neri and his family moved to Union sometime after 1906. After Mary died in 1919, he turned to farming and lived alone or with his daughter, Molly Green, the last nineteen years of his life. Neri died in 1936, being survived by three sons and eight daughters.

BUTLER, Eri & Elizabeth Arvilla Gibson

The seventh and last son of Samuel Butler was named Eri (1850-1927). Only ten when his father left, Eri and his brother Alma were then taken in by bishop Andrew Cahoon. He was trained in blacksmithing and by age 21, was living with Alma next to his oldest brother, Philander. In 1875 he married Elizabeth Arvilla Gibson, the daughter of William Gilbert and Elizabeth Osterander. He built for them a house with the lumber produced by his brother's sawmill. They had ten children together, all born in Butlerville, seven of whom reached maturity. The family moved to Idaho Falls where Elizabeth died in 1922, after which Eri relocated back to Butlerville. A very religious man, Eri was also a singer and square dance caller. He served as a counselor to his brother Alva in the Butlerville bishopric. Eri died there in 1927 at 77.

McGHIE FAMILIES

McGHIE, William Jr. and Mary McBain

Like the Butlers, the McGhie clan settled early in the mouth of Cottonwood canyon, obtained sizable parcels of land and played an important role in the area's early development. Scotsman William McGhie, Jr. was born in Kirkoswald, Ayre County in 1830 to John Kellie and Elizabeth Collins. When Elizabeth was remarried to William McGhie, Sr, in 1831, her infant son was adopted and given the name McGhie, with the Junior added. In 1854 the family, now expanded with the addition of two more children, sailed from Scotland to the United States. By then William, Jr. had married Mary McBlain, born in Glasgow, Scotland in 1832. They brought with them their three small children. On the voyage the passengers, including William, Jr. and his two-year-old son, William III, contracted smallpox and were quarantined. Although many others on board perished, all the McGhies were fortunate to survive.

After arriving in Utah, the McGhies settled in the Millcreek area but stayed there only a year or two before relocating to Provo where William, Jr. was employed in a sawmill. They returned to Millcreek in the fall of 1856 and remained in the area for ten years. After spending 1865-66 in Midway, the McGhies returned to the Salt Lake Valley, settling on 80 acres of land near the mouth of Big Cottonwood Canyon. This occurred in about 1867, making the McGhies one of the first families to permanently locate there.

The McGhie parcel of land was bounded on the south by 7000 South and on the northeast by the Old Mill Road. The top of the property was the nexus of Wasatch Boulevard and the Old Mill Road. On their original large parcel, the McGhies built a complex of buildings to serve their family and function as a way-station for the teamsters, miners and sawyers working up the canyon. In addition to their own family home, they had a stable from which they rented horses. William, Jr. also purchased the brewery built by Philander Butler, renaming it "McGhie's Tavern." While serving as the area's postmaster, McGhie's house was also the initial post office. When the Butlerville Precinct was formed in 1877, William McGhie became its first constable and it may be that one of his buildings also served as a temporary jail. According to 1870 census records, McGhie and his older sons were unspecified "laborers," while the other men listed then in "Big Cottonwood Canon" were either teamsters or sawmill workers. Among them were Lauritz Christianson, sawmill worker, Thomas, William and Peter Hiskey, teamsters, John Workman, sawmill worker, William Bowman, mill worker, William H. Bowman, teamster, Richard Huffaker, teamster, John Sideway (sic), millwright, and Olson Christian, laborer.

Perhaps the McGhies worked in sawmills too, but is also likely that they were employed at their own halfway station and farm instead. Rather than feuding with the neighboring Butler family and its five sons, it appears the McGhies and Butlers worked together in various industries. Eventually some in the two families would intermarry.

As reported in local newspapers in 1887, a major fire caused a devastating loss to the McGhie estate:

"A destructive fire occurred in Butlerville. William McGhie lost thirty tons of hay beside his wagon, sheds...a serious loss to him for he is a poor man who makes his living by cultivating gravelly ground, and that which was consumed constituted a large share of his products for the present season. The fire was started by two careless or thoughtless neighbor boys—one of whom was his own grandson—who after kindling it under a shed, left it and went to the house, where they remained for some time without saying anything about it. The stockyard being on the bench and the house some distance below it, on the creek, the conflagration was totally out of control before the owner was aware of it. The fire was still smoldering when our informant left Butlerville today."

In 1872 William McGhie, Jr. expanded his holdings after receiving from the federal government a Morrill Act patent allowing him to farm another piece of land bounded by today's Wasatch Boulevard on the east and his son-in-law, Neri Butler's property on the west. This gave him a total of 160 acres. He also obtained rights to Big Cottonwood Creek water, enabling him to create the McGhie Canal or Ditch and expand his farm. The 1880 and 1900 censuses show McGhie as a farmer. He also sold shares in the ditch to farmers along 2300 East, allowing them to irrigate their farms. McGhie also secured the rights to the seven large streams of water flowing from the hillside opposite his house in Butlerville. Known as McGhie Springs, the City of Murray acquired them in 1919 to provide culinary water for that city's supply.

William and Mary McGhie were a prolific couple. They had twelve children—seven daughters (Mary Elizabeth, Agnes, Elizabeth ("Libby"), Sarah Jane ("Sadie"), Henrietta ("Tet"), Jane ("Jean"), and Ann ("Margaret Annie")) and five sons: William III ("Billie"), Alexander ("Alex" or “Sant”), John, Joseph (“Joe”), and Thomas. All of the children lived to maturity, a rare occurrence at that time. Their children married into many of the other prominent families in Butlerville—including the Butler, Blair, Covert, Colebrook and Staker families.

William McGhie, Jr. passed away in 1902 at the age of 72. Mary McBain McGhie stayed in their home until she sold it to Hyrum Covert in 1912. She died in Butlerville in 1921 at 88.

McGHIE, William III and Sarah Jane Spillet

William, III was born in 1851 in Dalry, Scotland. In 1872 he married Sarah Jane Spillet. They received patents for a 160-acre farm on the west side of 2300 East north of 7000 South. Although they had no children of their own, they raised the three daughters of Sarah’s sister, Elizabeth Ellen Tangwall, who died in 1893. The three girls were Eleanora, who married Arthur Peterson in 1915, Henrieta, who married Alonzo Green in 1904, and Charlotte who died of pneumonia in 1916. William died of an accident in 1900. Sarah stayed in their home along with Eleanora and her family until they all moved to Sandy after 1920. Henrietta and Alonzo then occupied the home.

Alexander and Emma Rowan McGHIE (See Chapter XVI)

McGHIE, Mary Elizabeth and Neri Butler

The first McGhie child born in Utah, Mary was born in Salt Lake City in 1855. In 1874 she became the second wife of Neri Butler. They were parents of ten children, two of whom died young. The others were Neri Alexander who married Sarah Nancy Jones, Agnes Nerissa, who married Frederick William Boam, Mary Elizabeth who married Ernest Green and stayed in Butlerville, Sarah Jane who married Robert Henry Atkinson, William John who married Lillian Christine Sorensen, Emeretta who married George Tree Tapp, Viola who married Jedediah G. Clifford and Charles Leslie he married Mary Ann Fowkes, who also lived in Butlerville.

McGHIE, Agnes and Hyrum Covert

Agnes was born in 1857 and married Hyrum Covert, living in Butlerville. They were childless. Agnes passed away in 1911.

McGHIE, John and Rosetta Lavina Daw

John was born in Millcreek in 1859 and in 1886 he married Rosetta Lavina Daw. They lived in Butlerville on a farm between 2300 East and Highland Drive north of 7000 South, part of William’s old homestead. One of their eight children died as an infant. The others were John LeRoy who married Sigrid Rosalia Johnson, Ivy Sarah who married Ernest James Lavender, Everett Alonzo who married Beatrice Viola Chase, Mary Ethel who married Don Carlos Vinson, Elmo Rollo, married to Isabell Wardell, Dale Vern, and Vere Blain who married Lola May Rieck. John was a teacher who taught in the public schools. He died in 1947, followed by Rosetta in 1952.

McGHIE, Joseph and Cecelia Christina Potter

Born in Millcreek in 1861, Joseph McGhie married Cecelia Potter, born in 1870. Their three children were LaPriel, Dellos and Agnes Laveriel. Joseph was a miner who worked in Utah, Nevada and Arizona, where he passed away in 1906. After his death, Cecelia continued running a boarding house in McGill, Nevada. She died in Garland, Utah in 1916.

McGHIE, Elizabeth and William Oliver Blair

Elizabeth was born in 1863 in Millcreek. After she married William Blair, they lived in Butlerville until sometime after 1900 when they moved to Granite and farmed. Ten of the eleven children were born in Butler. The children were: Joann who married Jacob Covert, William Harrison, Thomas who married Emily Young Hardy, Parley who married Ivy Dean Cowley and lived on the Maxfield family farm, George M. who married Gladys Boyce, Robert Grant, Mary Etta who married Charles Edward Cushing, Frank, Ida who married Charles Morgan Oldham, Ada who married La Ville Alexander Butler and Elizabeth who married Lawrence Henry Brady. Elizabeth died in 1951, 21 years after William passed in 1930.

McGHIE, Thomas and Viola Elizabeth Daw

Born in 1863, Thomas was the last McGhie child born in Millcreek. His wife, Viola, was the sister of his brother John's wife, Lavina. Their farm was part of the McGhie homestead area between 2300 East and Highland Drive north of 70th South. Thomas' other occupation was working as a mechanic for Utah Power & Light. Their seven children were Clarence Leroy, Elizabeth Helen who married Frank George Poulson, Hazel Sarah who married Hilmer J. Jensen, Clesson Thomas who married Ester/Esther Jensen, Alice Viola who married Lyman Marson Sherwood, Vera Jean and Vaudis. After his wife Viola died in 1914 in Butler, Thomas moved out of the area, dying in Salt Lake City in 1934.

McGHIE, Sarah Jane and Charles C. Colbrook

Sarah Jane was born in 1866 after the family moved to Provo. Her parents were William and Mary McBlain McGhie. She married Charles C. Colebrook, founder of Colebrook's Corner. They lived there at the corner of 70th South and Highland Drive. Their one child was son Lewis who married Lucy Ethel Brady.

McGHIE, Henrietta, and Parley Henry Hansen

Born in 1869, Henrietta was the first McGhie child born after her parents moved to Butlerville. She married Parley Henry Hansen and they lived in several Salt Lake Valley locations before moving to Idaho prior to 1910. Their eight children were: Reuben Parley, Clyde Hyrum, Muriel, William, Etta, Mary Alice and Max McBain. Henrietta and Parley divorced sometime after 1920. She died in Pocatello, Idaho in 1948.

McGHIE, Jane and Charles C. Buhler

William, Jr., Thomas, Joseph and Elizabeth, and 21-year-old daughter, once-married Mary J. Humphreys. William remained in Butler until at least 1900 when the census records him as a 70 year old farmer. He died in 1915.

("William Cornwall," Cottonwood Heights biographical files.)

DITTMAN, August and Frederica Arendt

Married in about 1875, August and Frederica Dittman were born in Germany in 1850 and 1849, respectively. They came to Utah in 1885, settling in Butlerville. They and their children, George Ernest Max, Rudolph Charles, Alfred John, Bertha C, Henry, Herman Arthur, and Adolph, stayed in the area until 1910 when they moved to Salt Lake City. Frederica died in 1912 followed by August in 1926.

(Salt Lake Telegram, October 10, 1892, July 9, 1926; L.D.S. Family Group Records, censuses.)

ELIASON/ELLISON, Wesley and Elizabeth

East of the Fowlkes's parcel in Section 22 was the quarter section patented by Wesley H. Eliason in 1880. He was born in Virginia in about 1839 while his wife Elizabeth was born in England in about 1840. He farmed the land and maintained ownership through at least 1890.

FIRKINS, Joseph and Ann

The 1880 Census and c. 1890 Salt Lake County Map show Joseph and Ann Firkins farming 80 acres on the hill above the gravel pits north of Little Cottonwood Creek in Section 27. Both Joseph and Ann were born in England, in 1842 and 1844, respectively. They had seven children: Joseph, Anthony W., William, Ellis, George, Andrew and Jane. Joseph came to Utah in 1866 with his parents, led by Joseph Firkins, Sr. (1812-1867) and his wife, Elizabeth Steel. Before homesteading in Butler, the Firkins lived in Ogden.

(Ancestry.com; censuses.)

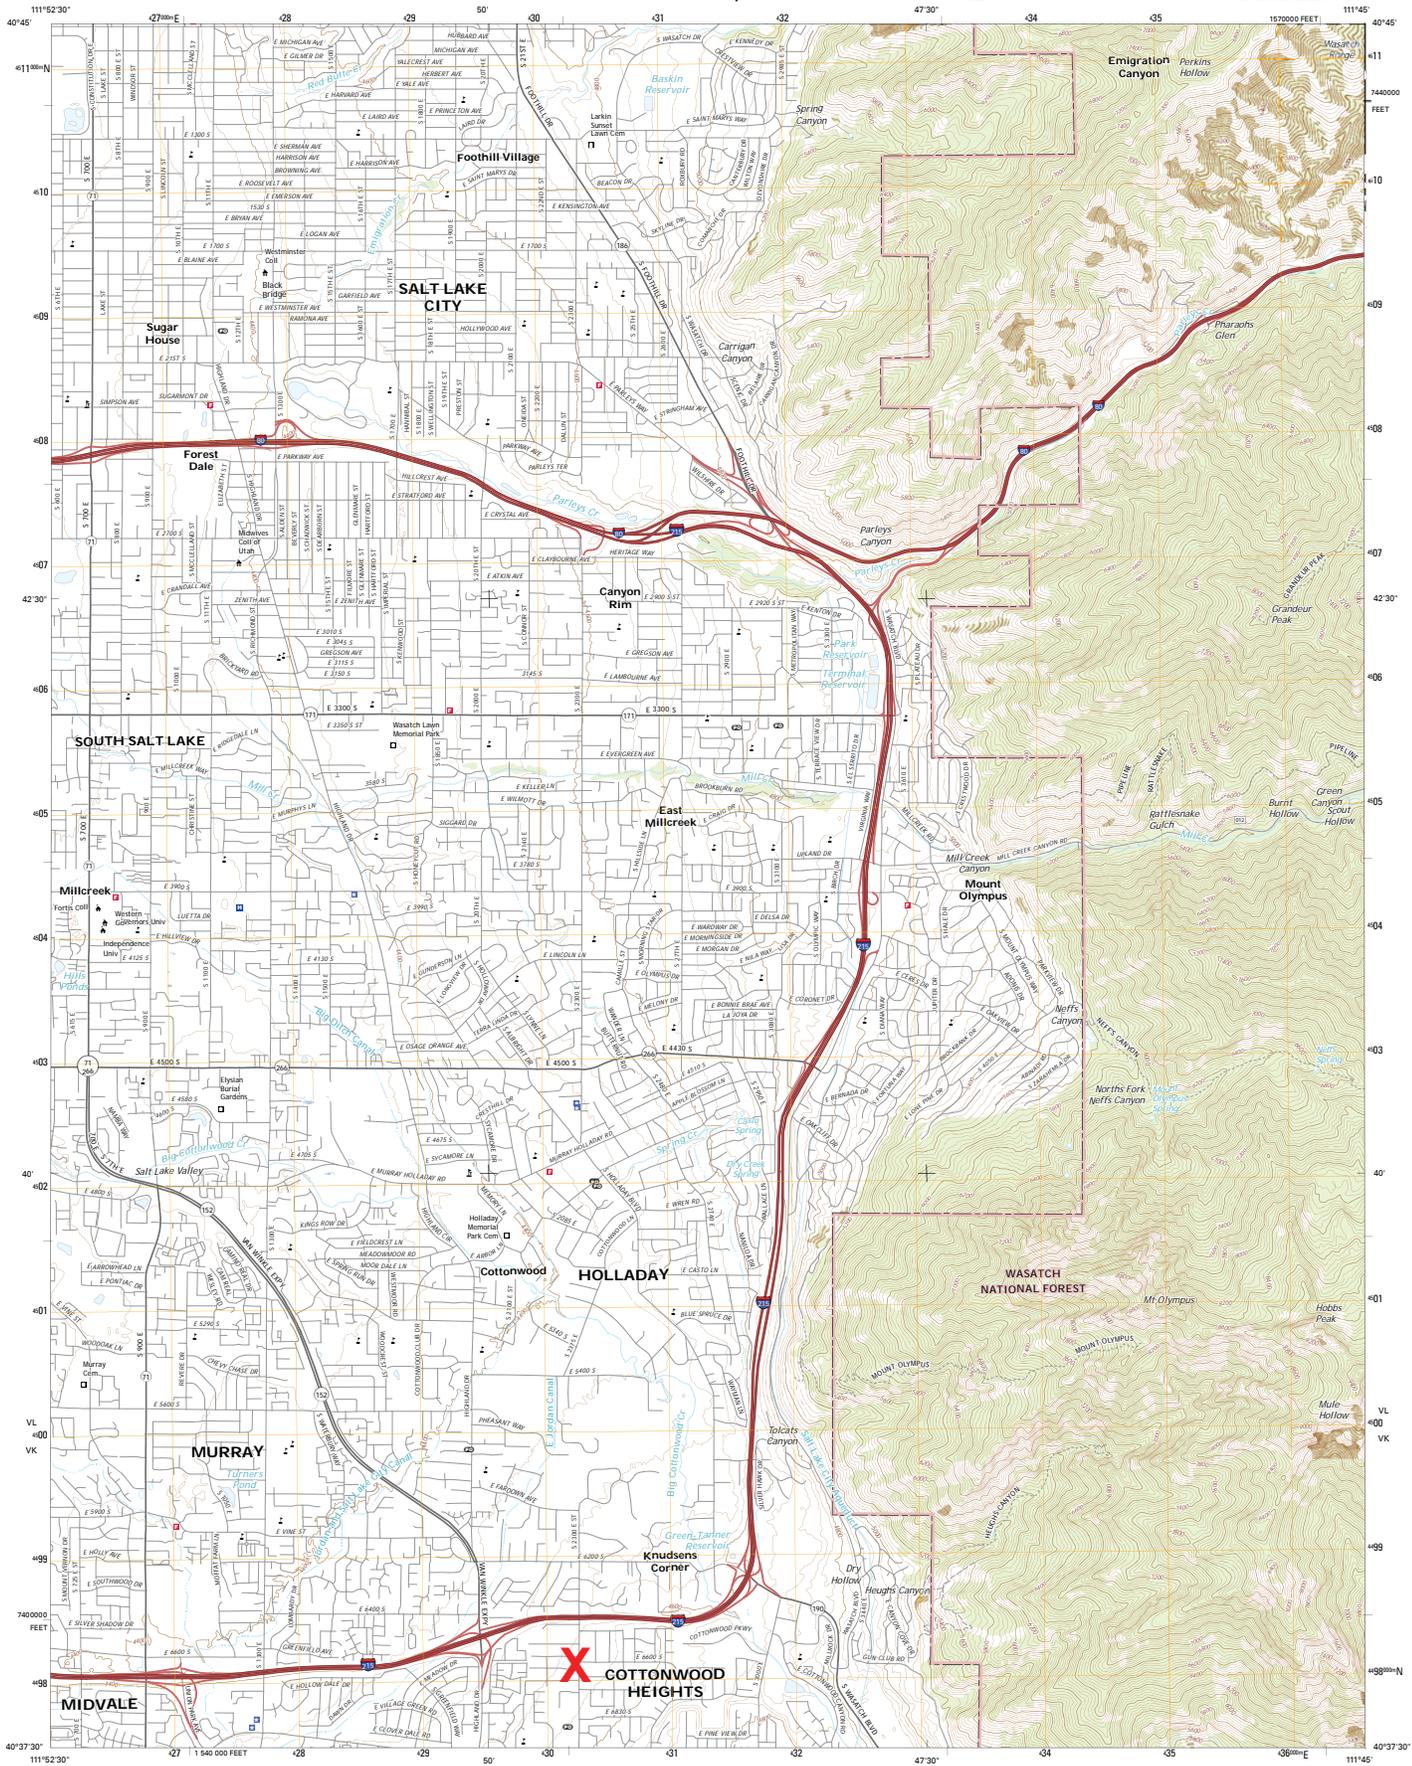

FOWLKES, John W. and Hannah

Born in England in about 1846 and 1841 respectively, John and Hannah Fowlkes lived and farmed in Butler 1880. In 1883 they received a patent for their 160 parcel at the northwest corner of Section 22. They were still there as late as 1890. John arrived in Utah in 1866.

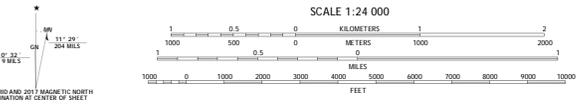

(Ancestry.com; censuses.)

GRAHAM, Neils and Engra

Unlike the other residents of Butler in 1880, Neils Graham was listed in the census as a laborer rather than a farmer. Born in Sweden in about 1838, he was 42 at the time and may have
