Thank You for 8 Years Filled with Accomplishments By Council Member Mike Shelton

It has been my privilege to serve on the Cottonwood Heights City Council for the last eight years. During that time, we accomplished a lot as a city. We built parks, buildings, trails, roads, parking lots, storm drains, and a host of plans. We put on many memorable events and productions. We changed some laws, and others we left in place.

We operated within our budget and put away some money for a rainy day. We responded quickly when residents needed emergency personnel. We took some impaired drivers off the road and sent "bad guys" to jail. We found a better way to plow snow. We saw some great people move on to other careers or retirement, and we were fortunate enough to hire great people to take their places.

People called, wrote and showed up to talk about what we were doing, what we should be doing or what we should not be doing. We often did what they hoped we would, but sometimes we did not. Even when I disagreed with them, I came to always appreciate their willingness to show up and stand up for what they thought was important. Sometimes history showed my deeply held convictions to be right, and sometimes it showed them to be wrong. I came to understand that nearly every person who involved themselves was just trying to make this a better place to live and work.

It was always a pleasure when a resident asked if I could help. Despite the worry expressed by many when they approached me, I was never inconvenienced by their requests. As a general rule, city officials at every level really want to help and appreciate the opportunity when it presents itself.

As a Council, we often agreed about what to do for the city, but sometimes we disagreed. In the

Wasatch Boulevard Design Workshop – Phase 2

On behalf of Cottonwood Heights and UDOT, thank you to those who participated in Phase 1 of the Wasatch Boulevard design charrette. The second and final phase of this public design process will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 14-16 at City Hall. The project team will present various concepts for the Wasatch Boulevard corridor based on the results of the visioning workshop held on Sept. 11. The upcoming design charrette will consist of a three-day interactive design workshop with the city, Utah Department of Transportation and the public. Concepts will be generated by the design team during the day and presented for review during evening sessions. Refinements based on public input will be made each ensuing day and again presented for feedback. Public open houses will be held on Oct. 14, 15 and 16 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Community members are invited to attend at their convenience to review design proposals and provide feedback to the project team. ■ times where my point of view did not prevail, I always appreciated that I had been given the opportunity to express my conviction safely and be heard. When a decision was made, we all tried to move forward without looking back. There is a reason that important city decisions are made by committee: The majority is much more likely to get it right.

"Thank you...", continued from cover

While I am extremely proud of many significant accomplishments, I may be equally proud of some things that we chose not to do. I came into government with a belief that larger government was not the answer to all problems.

A city is constantly hit with all kinds of ideas that if adopted would create demands on its resources. There are never enough resources to do all that people would like to see done. It becomes the easy path to say: "If some residents want it, we will just raise taxes on all to pay for it." Sometimes it is more difficult to remember that by demanding a greater percentage of a family's annual income to operate government, we keep them from using that money on what they think is most important. In the case of fixed income families, we may even keep them from being able to afford what they need.

Over the past several years, we have evaluated lots of new ideas and several potential new revenue sources for the city. During the last eight years, we implemented a new tax that adds 6 percent to every electrical and gas utility bill in the city. Last year, this energy use tax cost the average household around $200 (depending on energy use) and resulted in about $1,991,000 of the city's revenues.

We raised the property tax by about 13.5 percent. We considered raising it by a larger percentage but in the end decided that we could meet our obligations with a smaller amount. Last year, this raise cost the average resident about $60 in increased taxes and resulted in about $850,000 in new city revenues.

We also debated at length the implementation of a new tax on telephone bills (landline and cellular). In the end, we decided not to implement that additional tax. It would have been easy to impose the telecommunications tax. Virtually everyone else had done it. But as my mother taught me as a child, "Just because everyone else is doing it, doesn't make it right."

When we looked at imposing new taxes, we looked at the percentage of the average Cottonwood Heights family income demanded by the city in all the various taxes we impose. We looked at the escalation of city spending to see if it was out of line with inflation and with average resident family income growth. We compared overall taxes demanded of residents of Cottonwood Heights to those charged by our neighboring cities. In the end, I'm proud that we did not jump off the cliff and add new taxes just because others had jumped.

It would have also been easy to justify a low level of maintenance of our roads and our storm drains because "nobody is doing it" better than we are. I'm proud that we did not neglect the investments that we had already made and began executing a plan to improve road maintenance.

In final months of this year, we will begin to debate the implementation of a new storm water tax. It may be that this will be necessary to pay the costs of improving our storm water maintenance, but I'm confident that this idea will face the same scrutiny that those previous tax increase proposals faced.

I'm proud that we did not take residents property by eminent domain even when it might have been easier to do that. We purchased several pieces of private property, and to my knowledge, that property was always purchased on terms and at prices agreed to by the seller.

I'm proud of the amenities that we did not build because we could not build them without demanding a greater percentage of residents' income to build and operate them. I'm proud of the tickets and citations that we did not issue when not writing them solved the problem.

The greatest part of being involved has been the people. I'm proud to have been a small part of a great team. That team includes residents, business owners, city employees, elected officials and a significant number of volunteers who all have played an important role in making Cottonwood Heights the city that we love. ■

Bonneville Shoreline Trail Volunteer Opportunity

The Bonneville Shoreline Trail Committee, Wasatch Mountain Club and Cottonwood Canyons Foundation are hosting a volunteer work day on the soon-to-be-completed section of the Bonneville Shoreline Trail running from Big Cottonwood Canyon to Ferguson Canyon. The volunteer day, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 12, will involve trail cutting and stump removal. Those interested in helping out should meet at the Big Cottonwood Canyon Park & Ride (3653 Fort Union Blvd.) at 8 a.m. for a safety briefing and to sign a participation waiver. Groups will then be shuttled to the work site by 9 a.m. and then back to the Park & Ride by 1 p.m. Participants should come prepared with sturdy shoes, gloves, long pants, safety/sunglasses, water and snacks. For details, contact Cottonwood Canyons Trails Director Patrick Morrison, trails@cottonwoodcanyons.org. ■

Hannah Meenach, Cottonwood Canyons Foundation invasive weeds coordinator, educates volunteers on Dyers woad, a noxious weed common in the Wasatch Front Canyons. Volunteers removed 494 pounds of weeds from the Bonneville Shoreline Trail route running from Big Cottonwood Canyon to Ferguson Canyon on May 11. Volunteers will return to the same area to work on trail cutting and stump removal on Oct. 12.

Avoid Online Sexual Assault Medical Kits

By CHPD Chief Robby Russo

These days you can find just about anything with a few clicks on the computer; items designed to sidestep police and forensic nurse examiners ought not be among them. I noticed online retailers marketing “do-it-yourself evidence kits” targeting survivors of sexual assault. The product description offers a “sexual assault evidence collection kit containing all of the tools and step-by-step directions needed for the proper collection of evidence if going to the police or medical facility is not an option.”

We live in confusing times and navigating the criminal justice waters can be difficult, but it would be devastating for any victim to learn that the self-collected/stored evidence may not be admissible in court and that chances of justice are compromised.

Salt Lake County District Attorney Sim Gill said it well: “The monetary exploitation of trauma for profit is bad enough, but when that exploitation gives false hope and may compromise the very evidence and make it unusable thereby making the delivery of justice impossible, then it’s unforgivable.”

Here are some facts to help victims make better informed choices: When you reach out to law enforcement or go straight to the hospital, they will call our answering service for one of our sexual assault nurse examiners (SANE) to come directly to you at the emergency department. You are in control! You get to decide whether you speak with police, if you want the kit submitted to the crime lab and how much of the exam you would like performed. Properly securing evidence gives survivors choices and options for use later within the judicial system.

Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners (SANE) are registered nurses who have completed specialized education and clinical preparation in the medical forensic care of the patient who has experienced sexual assault or abuse. The SANE nurse will treat for sexually transmitted infections, address pregnancy risk and provide emotional support and resources to help victims begin the process of healing. By providing sensitive care in a timely manner, we help to lessen the long-term physical and emotional complications of this devastating crime. Those services are not included for $29.95 in the online kit and there is never any cost to the victim within our existing system.

I hope you will never need this assistance, but the numbers suggest someone you care about will. Let’s do this the right way in support of your health, safety and justice. ■

Cottonwood Heights Hosts Town Hall Meeting toward Addressing Canyon Traffic

The Mayor, City Council and staff will be hosting a Town Hall meeting to share information and obtain input on possible interim measures to address the impacts of canyon traffic. The meeting will be held on Monday, Oct. 7 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Cottonwood Heights City Hall Community Room located at 2277 E. Bengal Blvd. We invite all with interest to attend and provide input. Once the input is obtained, we will share the information with other governmental jurisdiction representatives including the Utah Department of Transportation, Central Wasatch Commission, Utah Transit Authority and others involved in monitoring and addressing traffic near Big and Little Cottonwood canyons. ■

Time for Leaf Cleanup

With the fall months approaching, we would like to remind the residents of Cottonwood Heights that it is the responsibility of each resident to clean up the leaves that fall from your trees. By the municipal code of the city, it is prohibited to push any material onto public streets or sidewalks. Organic matter including leaves, grass clippings and yard waste present a significant problem when they are left out in the gutter or sidewalk and not removed and properly disposed of for the following reasons:

- Leaves can clog storm drain grates and cause streets to flood. Furthermore, they can clog the underground pipes that carry the untreated water to Big and Little Cottonwood creeks.
- When organic matter decomposes naturally in water, it depletes the water of oxygen. This is extremely harmful to aquatic life in our local creeks.

Cottonwood Heights owns one street sweeper that can go a maximum of 5 miles per hour to pick up debris from the gutter. With over 250 miles of road to sweep, it is impossible for the street sweeper to pick up leaves from all the city streets before wintertime. The street sweeper also must make more trips back to the public works yard to dump the material when it could be out sweeping other streets.

What you can do to help is collect your leaves and either compost them or bag and dispose of them. Beginning Oct. 1, you can pick up 10 free leaf bags provided by Wasatch Front Waste & Recycling District from Cottonwood Heights City Hall (2277 E. Bengal Blvd.), Cottonwood Heights Recreation Center (7500 S. 2700 East) and Cottonwood Heights Fire Station (1790 E. Fort Union Blvd.). The leaf bags can be dropped off at Bywater Park (3149 E. Banbury Rd.) between Oct. 15 to Nov. 30. ■

History Question of the Month

Where does our culinary water in Cottonwood Heights come from and why was the Little Cottonwood Treatment Plant built when the Salt Lake Aqueduct was already in place?

Answer on page 6

Answer

The Metropolitan Water District of Salt Lake and Sandy owns and operates two large aqueducts for the purpose of conveying water. The Salt Lake Aqueduct (SLA) is a 42-mile long pipeline that carries water from Deer Creek Reservoir in Wasatch County to a storage reservoir in Salt Lake County. The Point of the Mountain Aqueduct (POMA) is the connecting pipeline between the Point of the Mountain Water Treatment Plant and the Little Cottonwood Water Treatment Plant. This 12 miles of pipeline travels from Draper to Cottonwood Heights.

The Little Cottonwood Water Treatment Plant (LCWTP) was built to provide water for the burgeoning population of Salt Lake City and the Sandy/Cottonwood Heights area. The LCWTP was completed in 1960 and designed to treat 113 million gallons of water per day. The capacity of the plant was increased to 143 million gallons of water per day in 2007. Other major improvements also were made. The plant is positioned inline with the Salt lake Aqueduct such that raw untreated water can enter the plant and finished/treated water can be transported through SLA to the terminal reservoir. Only 15 percent of the treated water goes to Salt Lake City. The remainder is supplied to the Sandy/Cottonwood Heights/Holladay areas. Additional water from Little Cottonwood Creek and Bell Canyon is also treated and used. ■

Recycling Survey Results

In July, Wasatch Front Waste & Recycling District conducted a districtwide Recycling Survey. From a total of 6,035 responses to this survey, 649 (10.8 percent) responses came from Cottonwood Heights.

Although comments from residents in Cottonwood Heights have suggested changing to biweekly recycling collections to reduce costs, there are 78.1 percent who place their recycling can out each week. This is within the national averages reported in waste and recycling reports.

The primary goal for the survey was to obtain information on districtwide support of continuing recycling efforts due to the increasing global challenges, as well as to see if there would be support for a fee increase to maintain services. In Cottonwood Heights, 81 percent indicated that they support continued recycling services, and 81.5 percent said they would support a fee increase to continue current level of services. ■
